From the Brussels Gazette, dated Feb. 1.

Madrid, January 9.

THE Estates of the Lordship of Biscay, sent Deputies with the following Address to the King.

SIR,

DON Francisco Riomal y Quiroga, our Corregidor, has communicated to us a Letter from the Archbishop President, in which it is related that the Emperor, at the Instance of the English and Dutch, and more especially of the Portuguese, has sent his Son from home upon chimerical Expectations, and with as chimerical Titles; And that there is ground to believe that Prince will come to Lisbon and declare an unjust War against Spain. The same Letter imports, that your Majesty most assuredly expects to receive on this Occasion due Proofs of the Valour and Fidelity of his Vassals, and in particular all that may well be expected from the Ancient Nobility and the Reputation of this Lordship. These monstrous Circumstances, Sir, so injurious to your Majesty, have astonish'd us beyond all Expression, and have inspir'd into us so much Detestation and Horror, that we could wish our Abilities could multiply on this Occasion, that we might contribute beyond our present Power, to the Royal Service of your Majesty, and to the Confusion of such airy Designs of your Enemies. We will endeavour, Sir, to supply our want of Ability with our constant Fidelity and Affection; being ready, for the Glory and Preservation of your Majesty, to let out the last drop of Blood that runs in the noble Veins of our Children, without emptying the youngest of them; desiring to shew that we are Descendants worthy our Ancestors, a handful of whom holding out against the Enemy, and keeping them at bay, gave time for the recovery of several Kingdoms. Your Majesty may depend upon it, that this true Obedience which we profess, and which was taught us by our Forefathers, is consecrated to you; And we assure you, Sir, that we have taken care to put our Coasts into a good State of Defence, to which Duty we were prompted by our Ancient Valour, and by a Desire of convincing the whole World how sensible we are, that the Goodness of God, and the natural Right of Succession, made your Majesty King and Sovereign Lord of this Monarchy. We hope, Sir, that God will graciously enable you to triumph over all your Enemies: And we beseech him long to preserve the Royal Person of your Catholick Majesty, for the Good of Christendom and your Subjects.

Biscay, Nov. 26. 1703.

To which his Majesty return'd Answer.

The King.

DEputies, Gentlemen, Esquires, &c. The Expressions of your Affection and Zeal, and the other Marks of your devoted Fidelity to our Service, which you give us in your Address of the 26th of November last, on occasion of a Letter written by the Archbishop late President of our Council, relating to the strange and unjust Designs of our Enemies, so well deserve our Royal Gratitude and Esteem, that we resolv'd to give this publick Testimony of them. We are perswaded that you will constantly on all Occasions act answerably to the Hopes which Experience has given us of your Fidelity, your noble Sentiments, and your natural Valour. While you maintain the Honour of Arms, the Glory of our Monarchy, and your own Loyalty, it will be easie to defend the Religion of these Kingdoms. On my Part, acting suitably to your Zeal, and the Disposition I find in all my Subjects, I will not be backward to expose my Person to all manner of Dangers and Fatigues for their Safety.

Madrid, Dec. 21. 1703.

I the King.

By Order of our Lord the King.

Don Francisco Nicolas de Castro.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated Feb. 5.

Madrid, Jan. 16. Don Capece-Latro, who after his return from Lisbon where he was Envoy extraordinary from this Crown, stop'd at Badajos, came hither the 13th Instant. The same day the Duke of St. Juan returned hither from his Viceroyalty of Sardinia, and we expect in a few Days the Count de Palma from that of Catalonia. The Governour of Alcantara and Albuquerque are chang'd, the Government of the first of these Places is given to a certain Knight of Biscay, and of the other to Don Domingo de Canal a Catalonian. The Flemish Troop of grand Musqueteers pass'd in review the 14th before Monsieur de Puisseur Inspector General of the Auxiliary French Troops; who will likewise take a Review of the Regiment of Irish Dragoons, and then will go with Monsieur Orri to Cadix and into Estramadura, to make proper Dispositions for the Subsistence of the French Troops. The King's Field Equipage is getting ready with all possible Dispatch. Among other Persons of Quality, the Pope's Nuncio, the Archbishop of Seville, and the Abbot d'Eures Ambassador of France will attend him to the Army. The Duke of Medina Sidonia Master of the Horse to his Majesty, has given in an Estimate of the Sum requisite for defraying the Expence of the Coaches, Caleshes, Carriages, Horses and Mules, that will be employ'd for his Majesty's Field Equipage this Campaign: Which Sum amounts to 23000 Pistoles. The Marquess of Villa Franca, Major Domo, has on the same Occasion given in an Estimate of what relates to his Office; as has also the Count of Benavente, chief Butler.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Feb. 9.

Madrid, Jan. 20. The Marquess de Puisseur is gone from hence to visit the Frontiers, but is expected back again very shortly. The Marquess de Villadarias Captain General of Andalusia, and other principal Officers of the Army that is drawing together on that side, are come to Seville, there to expect the Orders of the King touching the March of the Regiments of Horse that were lately sent thither, and of 3 Regiments of Foot that are quarter'd in the Neighbourhood of Seville. The City of Seville and its Territories are by their ancient Privileges exempted from giving Lodging or Entertainment to any Soldiers, the Officers were therefore order'd to have regard to those Privileges in quartering their Troops: But this City, to shew their Zeal for the Defence of the Kingdom, has offer'd to quarter and subsist the said 3 Regiments of Foot. The King is extremely pleas'd with this Testimony of Loyalty from one of the chief Cities of the Kingdom: And having order'd the the Marquess de Canales, Secretary of War, to write to the Magistrates of Seville, that he designs to reside there some time before the opening of the Campaign, they have resolv'd to receive his Majesty with great Magnificence and Feastings, and to expend 200000 Ducats on that Occasion.
